SPECIAL MEETING BRICKLAYERS' UNION,

Thursday evening, Jan. 9th at 8 o'clock Business of importance. Per JAMES FOX, Pres.

WHEN you want to put your busi-ess before the public, there is no me-ium better than through the advertis-ng columns of The Bulletia.

Steamer City of Worcester, once the pride of the Sound fleet, is doomed. Accordations are pending by which the cold steamer will be disposed of by the Soveral men who said they might bid for the Worcester have been the pending by the control her recently at Stonington and as inventories have been taken it is considered many of these mean business.

The anchors and chains of the steamer have been stripped off and divided among other steamers of the fleet at Newport, Many of such fittings have been put aboard steamer Richard Peck. The smokestacks were threatened by wind months ago and were taken down.

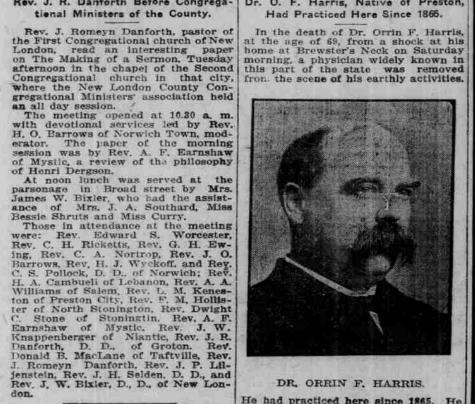

Carved pilasters, which every person who ever visited the Worcester's saloon will remember, have been removed. These added materially to the cost of the steamer when she was built in 1831 and served no other than ornamental purposes. They are birds, animals, fairles and nymphs fashloned in chony and white holly. Several of the figures have been cut out and sent to the offices of the company at Newport, where they will be arranged as decorations and souvenirs of the old Worcester.

Steamboat men, however, of and round as the first of the Worcester's running as a spare boat found her hull it for years more of usage. Modern like for the hill of the Worcester with a steamer were house and the company to the control of the fiscal and stripped off and divided among other steamers of the company to the cost of the steamer with should be a state of the worcester. The fact that she consumed too much coal to make her operation profitable caused the company to decide not to make persons that were necessary when the local board of United States inspectors refused to recertificate her. She was tied up because her ballers were in unsafe condition.

The hull of the Worcester is of iron and according to report is in as good state of repair as hulls many years newer. Despite the fact that the hull has been under water three times it still holds its original shape. The joiner work on the steamer is represented to the proposed the co

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, Chiefor sale at Lee & Osgood Co.

"If the police and the mayor allow this parade to take place," said Eugene S. Benjamin, president of the New York Clothing Trades association, they will have to protect the life and property of the manufacturers. This parade, I believe, will breed a riotous condition throughout the city."

The garment workers were joined in their strike today by ten thousand girls and women who are members of the International Ladies Garment union. They demand a workir- week of fifty hours, a minimum wage scale, the abolition of child labor and sanitary and fireproof shops.

It took sixty policemen and detectives to disperse a mob that gathered on University place today when strikers attacked a strikebreaker and a policeman who tried to protect him. Many of the rioters were women.

Three policemen were put on trial, charged by the strikers with brutality. Similar charges were made against other members of the force today after the riot on University place. "If the police and the mayor allow
